Pot Luck in the Muck' is looking for local stories

Are you interested in the Glades' history? Do you know someone who has a humorous, emotional or memorable Glades' story that you would like told? Are you a "pack-rat" and don't throw anything out? Then, 'Pot Luck in the muck' is looking for you!

'Pot Luck in the muck' is a group of Glades residents who have come together to tell the Glades' history in an entertaining and dynamic way through skits, stories, and songs. With a little luck and a whole lot of work, 'Pot Luck in the muck' will tell the story of who we are... by reminding us of who we were.

Right now, there are two immediate production needs that we are asking the community to help us with.

The first is the immediate need for transcribers. That is, people who can listen to some of the audio tapes of interviews that have already been collected and write up those stories. If you can volunteer your time and talent, please call Carmen Canales at 992-9500.

The second need is for old clothing. We are looking for period clothing for the play. If you are the type who doesn't throw away a thing, please rummage through your items and look for clothing from the 1920's through the 1950's. Then donate them to this worthy cause by bringing them to the Glades Community Development Corporation (GCDC) office, Glades Unity Plaza at 425 West Canal Street, North in Belle Glade through May 15.

The first presentation of 'Pot Luck in the muck' is tentatively scheduled for Saturday, May 23 and Sunday, May 24.

Pulse releases from Lake Okeechobee begin

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the South Florida Water Management District have agreed conditions are now favorable for giving the St. Lucie and Caloosahatchee estuaries additional relief from four months of steady water releases from Lake Okeechobee. Starting, Friday, May 8, the Corps began Level Three pulse releases to the St. Lucie Canal and Caloosahatchee River. This comes on the heels of a substantial reduction in the rate of discharge two weeks ago.

Since January, continuous heavy discharges have been necessary to reduce water levels in Lake Okeechobee and protect the Herbert Hoover dike. But they also have resulted in environmental damage to the two water bodies.

Unlike the steady releases, the Level Three pulse discharges closely mimic the more natural effects from an inland rainstorm and runoff into the estuaries. The pulse release schedule occurs over a ten-day period and then repeats itself until conditions allow for further reductions. Although a few days of each pulse release cycle will allow rates of discharge above current levels, the total volume of water being released from the lake will be the same as the present level of discharge. The varying rates of discharge will enhance the mixing of fresh and salt water thereby im-

Juvenile arrested with .15 grams of cocaine

On May 2, at 2:38 a.m. a concerned citizen contacted the Belle Glade Police Department and advised that a young boy on a bicycle was trying to purchase "Crack" cocaine in the 600 Block of Southwest Avenue E, Belle Glade.

Patrolman Jeffrey Ferrell responded to the area and located a 14-year-old Juvenile of Belle Glade who matched the description.

The 14-year-old was charged with possession of cocaine and released to his mother pending a court hearing.

Gang graffiti marks territory

Gangs often use graffiti to mark their territory. The practice is sometimes called "tagging."

"Much of gang graffiti uses satanic symbols," said Detective Brad Stark, a member of the Multi Agency Gang Task Force for the southwest Florida region.

He said some gang symbols incorporate the devil's horn, the devil's tail, pitchforks and the number 6.

Five-pointed stars, six-pointed stars, hearts and crowns are also used in gang symbols.

Some gang graffiti looks like scribbles, with letters written over each other.

Gang graffiti can also be used to challenge another gang.

THE CHOSEN POSSE graffiti found on the wall of a Chosen grocery store.

Teens arrested after breaking into Gove Elementary

By BRENDA BUNTING Editor

Police say some school principals in Belle Glade are in denial, but there are gangs in town and their handiwork is showing up in the schools and throughout the community.

Sgt. Matthew Sweet* with the Belle Glade Police Department is assigned to monitor gang activity in town. He says he has identified several gangs in the area. Many of them are young "wanna bies, but we've seen an increase in activity in the last six months."

The Latin Kings, one of the only nationally affiliated gangs, is showing up, as are local groups calling themselves the Belle Glade Thugs, the Small Town Thugs and the Smoke Quad Girls.

"We have identified at least 39 members of the Belle Glade Thugs (BGT)," says Sgt. Sweet, "and several of the gang members have been arrested."

Some BGT members were arrested this past weekend for breaking into Gove Elementary School. Hanging in age from 14 to 18, they were charged with trespassing on school property. Sgt. Sweet says this group is notorious for tearing up property. The group is mainly made up of Hispanics and African Americans and many are first time offenders. They also have female gang members.

Another gang he has identified in town with approximately 28 members are the Dogs Under Fire. This group has left graffiti on Airport Road and many of the members have a history of criminal activity. "They have stolen cars here and abandoned them in West Palm Beach. They then steal cars in West Palm to drive back to Belle Glade," said Sgt. Sweet. This gang is suspected of a lot of street crime in town.

You may see the gang graffiti around town and not be aware of what you're seeing, says Sgt. Sweet.

He says police are trying to cover up graffiti as soon as possible and are using inmates to paint over the words and symbols.

Some of the local school children have been visited by Sgt. Sweet and other officers to discourage the spread of the gangs. He said they have talked with staff at Belle Glade Elementary, Pioneer Park and Glade View, but not at Lake Shore Middle, where there is strong concern.

"We have identified gang related materials from some students, but we have not been invited in to talk to the kids," he said. One known group at Lake Shore is the Chosen Posse. Graffiti has been found at the school as well as at a small local store in Chosen.

Tillis building gets new look

Pahokee Main Street's Design Committee chaired by Barbara Branch has obtained drawings of several downtown buildings utilizing the new color palette envisioned by artist Becky Barwick. Ms. Barwick, a Stuart resident, grew up in Pahokee and is a FHS graduate. She is delighted to be involved in the Pahokee Main Street program and has offered much of her time and talent as a volunteer. The Tillis Building on North Lely, which already boasts a sample of Ms. Barwick's artwork on the front window, is the first building to have the facade repainted by contractors El-Mil Painting Co., Inc. Becky Barwick, and C&C Canvas & Arming Co., Frank Tillis, owner, will receive matching funds from the City for the improvements.

"When finished, this project will be an example of the look we would like to see in downtown Pahokee," said Shirley Jarrell, Pahokee Main Street Coordinator. "This fine design service is available to every business in Pahokee and a limited amount of matching funds are still available on a first-come, first-served basis. If you have applied for facade improvement funds, please contact our office to choose colors and see designs for your building."

Auditions open for Pot Luck in the Muck

Attention all you "home-grown" Glades actors and actresses! This is your call to fame!

The 'Pot Luck in the muck' production crew has announced that auditions for this original Glades historical play will be held Friday, May 15, at 5:30 p.m.

'Pot Luck in the muck' is an artistic interpretation of the Glades in an entertaining and dynamic way through skits, stories, and songs. With a little luck and a whole lot of work, 'Pot Luck in the muck' will tell the story of who we are... by reminding us of who we were.

Basically, there will be three kinds of scripts and actors needed. The first is those people who have to memorize small bit parts; the second are actors who have to mostly memorize parts with scripts concealed in props; and the third, is a reader's theatre style with longer monologues. Detailed character descriptions and scripts for each part should be available at the Glades Community Development Corporation offices at the Glades Unity Plaza at 425 West Canal Street, North in Belle Glade beginning the first week in May.

And if you are a little bit "stage-shy," there will be the need for "behind the scenes" helpers so please consider helping your community out in this way.

The first presentation of 'Pot Luck in the muck' is tentatively scheduled for Saturday, May 23 and Sunday, May 24. More details on this will follow shortly.

'Pot Luck in the muck' is a collaborative effort among the Glades Community Development Corporation, the Center for Creative Education, the Tourist Development Council of Palm Beach County and the Western Communities Tourism Alliance and other interested parties to identify a permanent historical performance/museum/community activity in the Glades.

proving water quality and allowing the estuaries to better absorb the fresh water.

The effect on the St. Lucie Estuary will be a reduction in impacts from the steady release of 1,200 cubic feet per second (cfs) of lake water to a series of pulse releases ranging from a one-day high of 2,400 cfs to a low of 400 cfs. Steady discharges of 3,000 cfs to the Caloosahatchee Estuary will now fluctuate between a one-day high of 6,500 cfs to a low of 500 cfs.

Estuaries scientists from the District and the Florida Department of Environmental Protection will continue to monitor impacts to the estuaries.

So far, St. Lucie salinity levels have risen from virtually zero to a favorable 13 parts-per-thousand. In turn, plankton, the food source for fish habitat, is already beginning to recover to normal densities. The extent of damage to seagrass and oyster beds is still being determined. They're expected to take much longer to recover.

In the meantime, if the most recent weather patterns continue, water managers are hopeful they will be able to lower Lake Okechobee to acceptable levels by June 1, the traditional start of the hurricane season.

Juice: the cure all for what ails you

A healthier life ...
By Katrina Elsen

Katrina Elsen

Anyone who suffers from frequent bladder infections has probably been told that apple juice or cranberry juice can help prevent this ailment. And, being Florida residents, we know that citrus juice can be part of a heart-healthy diet.

But did you know that other fruit and vegetable juices can be beneficial for those suffering from everything from headaches to arthritis to ulcers.

"Encyclopedia of Healing Juices," by John Heinnerman suggests the following juices for "what ails you."

- Alfalfa juice: Good for allergies, prevention of coronary disease and gout.

- Apple juice: Helps relieve constipation and prevent bladder infections. Fermented apple juice or apple cider vinegar can help those who suffer from arthritis.

- Apricot juice: Helpful to those suffering from cancer, night blindness, and liver problems.

- Asparagus juice: Helps reduce acne, eczema and other skin problems.

- Avocado juice: Helps reduce dry skin and scalp.

- Banana juice: Good for those suffering from ulcers, diverticulitis, gastritis, heartburn and hiatal hernias.

- Beet juice: Useful in treatment of alcoholism, drug addiction and some cancers.

- Blackberry juice: Helps bring down high blood pressure, also good for gallstones.

- Carrot juice: Good complexion problems, beneficial for good vision, helpful to those who suffer from lupus.

- Cherry juice: Helps relieve gout, rheumatism and arthritis.

- Citrus juices (orange, lemon, lime, grapefruit):

- Helps build up the immune system, helps reduce congestion, helps fight infection.

- Date or fig juice: Helps relieve insomnia.
- Grape juice: Helps prevent heart attacks, helps fight viral infections.

- Lettuce juice: Helps relieve headaches.

- Papaya juice: Good for ulcers, dehydration, circulation problems and spleen and liver problems.

- Pear juice: Helps relieve motion sickness or morning sickness.

- Pineapple juice: Helps digestion.

- Prune juice: Relieves constipation. Also good for gastritis.

- Pomegranate juice: Useful for helping bad breath.

- Tomato juice: Helps relieve Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, stimulates poor appetite.

- Watermelon juice: Good for arthritis, gout and skin problems.

Mr. Heinnerman suggests that for best results, buy fresh produce and juice it yourself. He also suggests that only organically-grown produce be used.

One thing to consider, if you are trying to lose weight or have a problem with blood sugar, make sure you take into consideration the calorie and fructose content of fruit juice. Juice is more fattening than the fruit itself, because you are consuming the fructose, or natural fruit sugar, in a more concentrated form, and because your body is not burning calories by processing the fruit pulp fiber.

And, as always, check with your doctor before changing your diet. This is especially important if you are on medication. Different foods may affect the way the body absorbs or reacts to prescription drugs.

"The Encyclopedia of Healing Juices," is available at the Public Library.

Area Teachers appreciated

I am calling in reference to the scores for the students in the Glades, especially K.E. Cunningham/Canal Point Elementary School. When the test scores were down, everyone - media, TV, newspaper - showed the negative aspects of the schools out here. Now that our scores are up, we are not hearing as much about the schools. I would like the Speak Out to do an article pointing out that not only are the teachers in the Glades capable of doing a fantastic job, the students are capable of learning. So someone needs to contact some of these schools in Belle Glade, South Bay, Pahokee and Canal Point to do an article to show - let the students and the teachers know - you are behind them 24 hours a day. Thank you very much.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the May 7 issue of The Sun, Contributing Editor Katrina Elsen spoke to each of the four schools to gain a response from each principal. The articles placed in The Sun were in no means a way of putting down our teachers for they are greatly appreciated, and in no way putting down our students, for they are definitely our future. The articles printed were simply to provide knowledge to parents, students and the community as to where our area schools stand as a whole. Congratulations to the schools, the teachers and the students - you are off the list! And, thank you to our Speak Out caller for your time in speaking out.

NOTE: Several Speak Out calls are not printed in this week's edition of The Sun because responses were unavailable by press time.

Dear Editor:

As our state legislators scramble to give away 500 million dollars of unanticipated revenue, I beg of them to think of little Devin (not his real name). He is only 7 years old but has more anger and rage on his face than I have ever seen on such a young person. I want desperately to do for him what I see happening in schools that can access federal grant dollars to supplement the crushing load of overcrowded classes and lack of adequate funding for the urban school districts.

As a School Board member, I cannot get Devin the extra resources he needs. Resources that would give him at least some individual attention during the day to focus on his academic subjects. Resources that would give him a fighting chance to be reading on grade level by third grade. Why? Because Devin goes to a school that has LESS than 60% of its children on free and reduced lunch. (The federal guidelines allow for funding schools at 50% but to focus on schools with the highest population of needy children, Palm Beach County allocates 60%).

Children are not just walking brains that are unaffected by their home life. Some are more resilient than others. But, it takes time and focused attention to save the Devins in our schools before they end up in prison. The only thing Devin has done wrong so far is pick the wrong parents. His mother is addicted to crack cocaine and his grandmother, his only constant, is not well enough to care for him adequately. He is only seven years old and is virtually alone in this world. The other children are frightened by his rage and move their desks away from him and are fearful of befriending this little angry, explosive guy. The teachers do what they can because they are absent to get him to school, but when I go to schools that receive federal funding because they have more "Devins" in this world. They are being taught individually and thriving on the extra attention. They have a chance to be reading on grade level by third grade and later become productive, taxpaying citizens.

As a board member, it is my job to deal with efficient management of our resources and I am willing to be held accountable for that. I agree that our limited resources should be focused on the schools with the greatest percentage of needy children. That is why I am asking you to help save the "at risk" children who do not happen to attend a school with 60% of its children on free and reduced lunch. The clash of the "haves" and the "have nots" at these schools only adds to Devin's rage. I am begging you, our state legislators, to do the right thing for the "Devins" that have been ignored by our State and Federal Education Funding Formulas for far too long. No, Devin is not a property owner or a voter but he could be tomorrow's teacher, coach or doctor if you, our legislators, would create a state allocation for the schools with "at risk" children like Devin that have less than 60% of their students on free and reduced lunch. Thank you for considering this request.

Sincerely,

Raspberries can be a money-maker for Florida farmers

Raspberries, long considered a Northern crop, may find the South hospitable after all, researchers at the University of Florida have found.

"This is a crop with some real potential," said researcher Bob Knight, of UF's Tropical Research and Education Center in Homestead. "We've heard from farmers as far away as North Florida who are interested in raspberries."

Fall-bearing, or ever-bearing, red raspberries would give Florida farmers a good off-season crop, said center Director Waldemar Klassen. Visitors from Northern states, Canada and Europe prize raspberries, Klassen said, and provide a natural market for Florida raspberries.

Knight said raspberries would be a welcome addition to Florida fields because of their high price and high yield per acre.

Florida raspberry plants also would begin bearing fruit earlier than those from out of state, hitting a market window currently unfilled.

Knight's research focuses on which varieties will perform well in Florida. The Heritage variety appears to do better than others being tested in trials at the research center, a part of UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, Knight said. Autumn Bliss also has performed well and Ruby, a third cultivar under study for the first time this year, shows promise, he said.

As with strawberries, the plants are shipped in from up North, where they get the one ingredient they cannot get in Florida: the chilling phase they require to set fruit.

By the middle of February, when much of the plants' native territory is under snow, the plants begin to bear fruit, allowing Florida farmers to capitalize on the late winter-early spring market. Early results show yields as high as 3,225 pounds of raspberries per acre.

And with raspberries currently commanding $3 per half-pint, they could provide a lucrative boost for Florida farmers. Knight says even $2 per half-pint would be a good return.

"Raspberries certainly produce," Knight said. "And with our large market, there's no reason they can't do well."

Knight said South Florida farmers still are recovering from hurricane Andrew, and he hopes raspberries help fill an agricultural void left by crops not replanted after the 1992 hurricane.

"We're still feeling the effects of Hurricane Andrew," Knight said. "The hurricane freed newly vacant land for other crops and focused growers' attention on the need for crops less vulnerable to the vagaries of climate. That's part of what has impelled us to different areas of research and education."

Limes, avocados and mangoes are virtually destroyed in South Florida and the crop's comeback has been slow. Some fruits formerly considered niche crops have replaced the destroyed crops, and that diversity has helped keep South Florida farmers in business, he said.

"The economic strength of this part of Florida is diversity. The region isn't totally reliant on one crop. We have a variety of crops and none are monolithic, like cotton or field corn," Knight said. "Raspberries are another crop our growers can turn to that will add to their potential for income."

Knight said the pick-your-own market might be particularly lucrative for raspberry growers. And raspberry plants are attractive enough to be used as an ornamental, but productive, addition to patios, like patio tomatoes.

Floridians brace homes for post-El Niño storms

By Bill Nelson
State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner

Like a boat captain who spots a channel marker battered by the sea, Floridians know rough conditions may lie ahead during the Atlantic hurricane season, which runs from June 1 through Nov. 30.

After all, most weather forecasters agree that the departure of El Niño - that well-publicized weather phenomenon characterized by warmer Pacific seas - will result in more favorable conditions for hurricanes this year than in 1997. Dr. Williams Gray, a Colorado State University professor and one of the nation's top weather experts, predicts 10 named storms, including six hurricanes - two of them packing winds of more than 111 mph.

This forecast contrasts greatly with our experiences last year, in which only three storms reached hurricane strength and none directly hit Florida. Nevertheless, Danny, the one hurricane that actually made landfall, dumped 40 inches of rain upon our neighbors in Alabama and negatively impacted tourism, fishing and farming in Northwest Florida. Throughout the Southeast, that one storm tragically contributed to nine deaths and caused nearly $100 million in property damage, according to the National Hurricane Center.

As Florida's Insurance Commissioner, I've worked closely with other state leaders to help residents fortify their homes with hurricane shutters, roof anchors and other safeguards. Our Department of Insurance recently teamed up with the Department of Community Affairs to launch the Residential Construction Mitigation Program. Eighteen hundred residents were randomly selected from high-risk coastal areas in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties for free evaluations and the opportunity to obtain free evaluations for improvements to better protect their homes against wind damage.

In a statewide effort, our two agencies also are working with the non-profit Institute for Business and Home Safety to distribute a special guide on home fortification. You may call the insurance department's toll-free Consumer Helpline at 1-800-342-2762 for a copy of the guide, entitled "Is Your Home Protected from Hurricane Disaster? A Homeowner's Guide To Hurricane Retrofit." The hearing impaired may order it by using a TDD to call 1-800-640-0886.

Since no one can predict exactly what the 1998 storm season will bring, homeowners should keep insurance policy information (originals and copies) in more than one safe and handy place.

Other steps to reduce the potential property damage or financial impact include the following:

- Install wind-tested shutters and other protective devices, but make sure the improvements meet your insurance company requirements for premium discounts and local building code.
- Review your homeowner's, condominium, unit-owner's or renter's insurance and ask your agent or company about anything you don't understand.

Consider updating your policy to reflect your home's current value. You also may need extra coverage for antiques, collectibles, computers and other valuable items. Carefully inventory your belongings and use a camera or camcorder to create a visual record; and

- Consider obtaining the separate insurance needed to protect your home and its contents against rising water or storm surge, especially if you live in a flood-prone or coastal area.

The Department of Insurance will work closely with federal, state and local emergency management agencies to provide needed services if a major storm hits our state. Let's hope that names like Alex, Bonnie and Charley from this year's official storm list do not become household names in Florida. But, like the captain who knows when to hurry back to port, we need to prepare for the worst.

Last year's Miami tornado was an incredible and scary sight

By MIKE LYONS

It was the tornado that broke all the rules. The tornado that formed in the middle of a major city in front of thousands of stunned witnesses. The tornado that may be the most famous weather event since El Niño.

One year ago this week a tornado formed in downtown Miami. Witnessed by thousands of people and photographed by dozens of cameras, the twister zipped and zipped its way through the Miami skyscrapers shortly before 2 p.m. on Monday, May 12, 1997.

It was an incredible sight - a giant white funnel framed against the Miami skyscrapers. The images appeared on television newscasts and in newspapers around the world, making it one of the most famous tornadoes in history.

Never before had such an image been captured on videotape. After all, tornadoes are supposed to form out in the country not in the middle of a major metropolitan city. Twisters ravage trailer parks not weave between skyscrapers 60 stories high.

Yet, this tornado was the exception to the rule. It was born just southwest of Miami touching down in the Silver Bluff Estates at 1:53 p.m. The twister moved east-northeast at 20 to 25 mph, cutting a 30 to 150 yard-wide path through the city. The National Weather Service says the tornado was on the ground for eight miles.

It damaged the roof of an apartment complex and houses in the Little Havana area. Windows were blown out of several office buildings, including every window facing south on the first three floors of the Citidel Building on N.W. Fourth Street.

Cars were overturned when the twister swept through the parking lot of a Belle south building. A Metro Mover car on Miami's public transportation elevated rail system was derailed as the tornado raged in downtown Miami.

It was a fairly strong tornado by Florida standards. The National Weather Service estimated the wind speed at 100 to 110 mph, making the Miami tornado an F1 on the Fujita Tornado Intensity Scale. Most Florida tornadoes are weaker and don't last as long.

It produced significant damage, too. An estimated $500,000. In addition, about a dozen people were injured from the storm, mostly minor cuts and bruises. Given the intensity of the tornado and its unusual location, it is remarkable that no one was killed.

Last night, I watched the videotape of the Miami tornado again. It is one of the most amazing things I have ever seen. The video sequence I looked at showed the entire history of the tornado, beginning with its drop from the clouds and ending with its dissipation over Biscayne Bay.

Thanks to the popularity of video cameras, more unusual weather events are being captured on videotape. Chances are, however it will be some time before we see a tornado as extraordinary as the Miami tornado.

I've often said that Mother Nature is full of surprises. I wonder what else she has up her sleeve.

(Mike Lyons' weather forecasts are broadcast weeknights on WPTF-TV)

Ten Romeo: Flying Fast and Fair

By Rev. T. J. McSweeney
Director of The Christopher

Doctor Millard Harmon has been a committed Christian all his life. In 1984 he took an early retirement from administering college campuses for State University of New York to be a full-time humanitarian.

His lifelong avocation as a pilot, fueled by an innate desire to make a difference, literally took flight in 1985. You may already know about him and his aircraft, a single engine Beech-36, called Ten Romeo. He opened Soviet skies to Western light aircraft by flying into Moscow. Since then he has saved a children's summer camp in Tallinn, Estonia, by flying in food that wasn't available locally, brought a Soviet child to the United States for medical care and returned him home to a normal life. He has also flown 156 speed records in Ten Romeo, and has been twice nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

He says: "In all these humanitarian efforts and through the life-threatening experiences I often face, the Lord has indeed been my partner in attempting to make the world a better place."

72-year-old Mil, Ten Romeo and the Lord aren't headed for the hangar yet. Over Easter 1997 Mil began a new mission. "The Spirit seemed to suggest that I attempt to build a 'Medicine Bridge' between Key West and Havana. The real task is to remove medicine and food from sanctions that deny help to hospitalized children just 90 miles from our shores. These sanctions steal the generosity from American hearts!"

Mil's plan, however, nearly put him out of business as a humanitarian. Frustrated in four attempts to get State Department permission to land in Havana, he altered his plans. He made Grand Cayman his destination with an overflight of Havana in order to set another speed record. With $50,000 in donated medicines on board, he just knew the Lord would find a way to get the needed supplies from Grand Cayman to Havana.

And that's what happened. Over Cuba his engine began to run rough and developed an oil leak, and Mil was forced to make an emergency landing at Jose Marti International Airport in Havana.

In Havana, he immediately gave the penicillin and asthma medicines he had collected from doctors to Caritas Cubana, a religious organization that had agreed to distribute the medicine. Because the U.S. Federal agents were suspicious that his landing was "contrived" since he had been seeking entry for so long, Mil knew he would have to prove that his plane was indeed malfunctioning.

Landing in Albany, New York, he and his plane were surrounded by 12 customs officers and a covey of FAA officials as well as two coast planes that had tailed him from Miami. Mil produced documentation showing that Ten Romeo had blown a gasket, but his plane was confiscated, and Mil was slapped with a $34,000 fine, not including legal fees.

I spoke with Mil by phone that week and am glad to report that Ten Romeo has been returned, but he had to mortgage his home to cover the penalties. But he is not bitter. "After all, Father Tom, I'm just doing the work of the Lord."

Many people say and believe that "God will find a way." And God Does - especially when he works through people as determined as Mil Harmon. He is, for me, a singular example of someone who turns faith into action. Somehow, I don't think we've heard the last of Dr. Millard Harmon or Ten Romeo.

DOES CHIVALRY STILL LIVE?

If you would ask that question of any of the ladies at Belle Glade Elementary, you would receive a resounding, "You had better believe it." On Thursday, May 7th, the fantastic Men of BGE cordially invited the ladies to "Thursday at Lunch." The men prepared and served the ladies a scrumptious pre-mothers day meal.

The ladies were warmly greeted and escorted to beautifully decorated tables. The tables were covered with matching tablecloths and beautiful centerpieces. Once there, the chairs were pulled out for them to sit down. The food requests were immediately taken and brought to the ladies, as they sat and listened to the sound of the soothing music playing in the background. The soft jazz music helped to calm their stressed out souls. All the ladies had to do was sit back, relax and enjoy the precious moment.

The special menu consisted of tender roasted turkey, honey baked ham, sweet potato yams, yellow rice, hot buttered rolls, a deliciously sweet pound cake and some tropical juice to soothe their thirst. While the ladies were eating, the men walked around inquiring as to whether they were in need or desirous of anything else. After the ladies finished savoring their delicious meal, the men graciously removed their plates. The ladies received four star service! Judging from all the beaming smiles that radiated across the room, the women totally enjoyed the experience.

FROM LAST WEEK

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL
Buckshot Jones assumed control after the halfway point and breezed to a victory over fellow Pontiac driver Tony Stewart in the Gumout Long Life Formula 200 at Loudon.

It was the Georgia driver's second career victory and his first since a triumph on the Milwaukee Mile back in July of 1996.

Teen-aged standout Casey Atwood started on the front row for the second time this season and proved that the first qualifying performance, at home track Nashville, was not a fluke.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES
The weekly rivalry between 1997 champion Jack Sprague and '96 champ Ron Hornaday continued at Evergreen Speedway in Monroe, Wash., with Sprague holding off Hornaday in the drivers' second 1-2 finish of the year.

Sprague's victory gave Chevrolet a 3-2 edge over Ford in manufacturer wins, with Dodge, a two-time winner in 1997, still winless. Ironically, the series next visits 1-70 Speedway in Odessa, Mo., on May 23. That track was the site of the first Dodge victory, by Tony Raines, one year ago.

PROFILE

David Green

David Green, left, believes communication is vital to a racing team's success.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week
The former Busch Grand National champion has found the going rough in the Winston Cup Series.

DAVID GREEN joined the Winston Cup Series in 1997, moving up with his BGN car owner, Buz McCall. McCall was tremendously successful as a car owner in the SCCA Trans-Am road racing series before moving over to NASCAR.

Green has two brothers, Jeff and Mark, who are also active as drivers in Winston Cup and Busch Grand National.

AGE: 40
WIFE: Diane
CHILD: Kaylie Rae (11 months)

CAR: No. 96 Caterpillar Chevrolet Monte Carlo, owned by Buz McCall.

CAREER RECORD: 35 starts, 0 wins, 0 poles, 0 top-five finishes, 0 top 10s, career earnings of nearly $800,000.

FIRSTS (WINSTON CUP): Start (Feb. 23, 1997, at Rockingham), pole (none), win (none).

DOES THE DANGER OF DRIVING AT TRACKS LIKE TALLADEGA AND TEXAS BOTHER YOU? "You're so comfortable with the cars we have nowadays. Safety is the ultimate thing. When you're out there running, you don't think about fear until it's over. You look at the replay and say that's a pretty big wreck, but these are the greatest drivers in the world and you don't think about it."

HOW TOUGH IS IT TO BECOME COMPETITIVE WITH A NEW TEAM? "The key is having the right people putting their heads together and communicating. Communication is the biggest thing. We've got good people, but when our communication got better, and we set out to fix our problems to the best of our abilities, and all of a sudden things started happening. ... We've had some sleepless nights. Thank goodness the sponsor has been willing to stay behind us."

DO THE RUMORS THAT HAVE BEEN SWIRLING AROUND MAKE IT MORE DIFFICULT? "The rumors have gone because we've had other things to talk about. Rumors always hurt. It doesn't matter if you're a driver, a sponsor, an owner or whoever you might be. It hurts the most when you know you're giving 100 percent. I don't play around through the week. I stay in the best physical shape I can. When I get to the track on weekends, I'm ready to do battle and give 100 percent."

YOUR TURN

Letters from Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
My son and I have been NASCAR fans for a few years now and grew to love it even more as we became disillusioned with Indy-car racing and all of its controversy. I love everything about NASCAR and, even though I have a very interesting lifestyle flying jets for a major airline, my thrill of a lifetime came when I went to the Richard Petty Driving Experience in Charlotte, N.C., last summer, a gift from my wife.

My question is this: With the huge potential of the Chicago area for NASCAR, is there any effort being made to construct a race track within driving distance? I would give anything to see this happen.

Rick Husted
McHenry, Ill.

Dear Rick,
The Chicago area is one that has drawn the attention of several groups. So far, none of the various plans has succeeded, partially because of the opposition of citizen groups lobbying against such a facility being built in their neighborhoods. Take heart, though. It is probably just a matter of time.

If you've got a question or a comment, write: NASCAR This Week Your Turn, c/o The Gaston Gazette, 2500 E. Franklin Blvd., Gastonia, N.C. 28054

NEW! Moore and his Square D pit crew overcame a costly mistake on pit road to win the race when Kenny Wallace pulled off — to get Wallace back into contention in the DieHard 500.
Wallace's seventh-place finish was his third top 10 of the year, one more than all of last season.

ON THE MARKET
No Jeff Gordon fan should be without "One in a Million" (ESPN Video), a recounting of his 1997 Winston Cup championship. The camaraderie between Gordon and crew chief Ray Everham is vividly demonstrated, and considerable analysis is afforded to his chief rivals, Dale Jarrett and Mark Martin. Entertaining and historically significant.

TRIVIA

1. Who was the only Winston Cup champion to hold a college degree?
2. Who was NASCAR's first rookie of the year?

AROUND THE GARAGE

Dallenbach likely to join Team Hendrick Chevrolet

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week
Wally Dallenbach Jr. will likely be phased in as driver of the No. 50, Budweiser-sponsored Team Hendrick Chevrolet until regular driver Ricky Craven is medically able to return.

Dallenbach, released at the end of April as driver of Felix Sabates' No. 46, will drive the car in the Winston Open on May 16 at Charlotte Motor Speedway. Randy LaJoie, who has had some success in the car, will then return for the Coca-Cola 600 on May 24 and the Miller 500 at Dover on May 31.

"We had a commitment through Dover when we first made this agreement. Randy didn't want to hurt his Busch team, and it's tired him out a little bit," said John Hendrick.

Craven is suffering from the lingering effects of several concussions and awaits spinal clearance before he is able to return. He also recently underwent knee surgery.

Of Craven, Hendrick said, "He's very much wants to be back in the 50 car this year, and that's our goal. Ricky is working hard to get himself physically fit. We have to be prepared for it if he cannot return."

Dallenbach will definitely run the Budweiser 500 at Pocono, June 28, for as long as he is in the car as early as Richmond (June 6) or night at Richmond.

LaJoie has a conflict during Winston weekend because the Busch Grand National cars have a race in Nazareth.

HELP FROM FRIENDS: Jeremy Mayfield's rise to the top of the Winston Cup standings is encouraging to cynics who have pointed out that most of the sport's young stars seem to vault to the top either because of family connections or personal wealth. Mayfield's success is attributed to his own hard work and his close relationship along the way, and they really gave me directions to follow.

"Cale Yarborough gave me a big break and hired me as his driver when I had only eight (Winston Cup) races under me. I appreciate that, then, of course, Mike Kneafuss (his present car owner) wanted me to drive his car."

"It's still about desire and determination," he said.

ago, Ky) and got in with the Sadlers (Sadler & Sons Racing), and they supported me. They gave me my first break, got me in the ARCA series and helped me meet a lot of people. I had friends like Bobby Hamilton and Daniel Waltrip, plus a lot of other people met along the way, and they really gave me directions to follow.
